STANLEY SAGOY: SABBATICAL JAZZ REFLECTIONS Comment The South African pianist-composer, physician, and pedagogue's joyful jazz contains echoes of his native land, and his buoyant band includes some of the area's finest players: trumpeter Mike Peipman, bassist John Lockwood, drummer Bob Gullotti, and vocalist Wannetta Jackson. *Nov. 4, 7:30 p.m. $23-$30. BOSTON MUSICA VIVA In a program titled "Northeast by Far East," Richard Pittman leads the premiere of Peter Child's "10 Basho Poems" as well as a work by Zhou Long — "Metal, Stone, Silk, Bamboo" — that incorporates a wide array of traditional Chinese woodwind instruments, to be played by guest artist Yazhi Guo. Nov. 4, 8 p.m., Longy School of Music of Bard College. 617-354-6910, www.bmv.org

CANTATA SINGERS So what are you doing to celebrate David Hoose Day in the City of Boston? That's right, it's official: City Hall will honor Hoose with a declaration for the start of his 35th season at the helm of this estimable chorus. And if you're looking for a way to mark the occasion, conveniently enough, the group will be throwing its own celebration that night, with music by Mozart, Haydn and — a Hoose specialty — Zelenka. Nov 3, 8 p.m., Jordan Hall. 617-868-5885, www.cantatasingers.org

CHAMBER MUSIC On Monday, the innovative string quartet Brooklyn Rider performs works from its new album, "Spontaneous Symbols," at the Harvard Ed Portal; on Saturday, the Parker Quartet returns to Jordan Hall with works by Mozart, Schubert, and Prokofiev; and on Nov. 5, the Kalichstein-Laredo-Robinson Trio continues its traversal of the Beethoven Piano Trios at the Gardner Museum. www.edportal.harvard.edu, www.ChinesePerformingArts.net, www.gardnermuseum.org
